GENERAL NEWS.

CONKLING-SPRAGUE SCANDAL.

The Different Versions.

NEW YORK, August 11. The World of Sunday said, Narragansett Pier has never had such a sensation as it is now enjoying—a sensation in which one of the foremost men in the country figures. His alleged foe in the combat, for a fight is said to have occurred, being equally well known in Rhode Island. The two men referred to are Senator Roscoe Conkling and ex-Senator and ex Governor William Sprague of Rhode Island. Another story however is told by a clergyman at Narragansett Pier, and the following are as nearly as can be learned the particulars from this point of view. It is well known that ill feeling has for some time existed between Sprague and Conkling presumably on political grounds. Tuesday last, Conkling arrived here on private business in no way connected with Sprague's affairs, and called as a friend of the family at Sprague's house. For some days past, it is known too, that Sprague had been laboring under visible excitement and has been absent from home in company with some friends interested in railroads. The local stories of the affair are naturally exaggerated, and it is a difficult matter to obtain trustworthy information. From what, however, is believed to be well informed sources, it is learned that Sprague addressed some unseemly language to Conkling, who courteously and considerately forbore to reply. Sprague thereupon producing a pistol, told Conkling that, unless he left the house in a very brief given time he would blow his brains out. Conkling thereupon retired from the scene. It is said further that there was a hostile meeting subsequently at the Cape, but that cannot be verified, and is probably not true. This is the talk of all the clubs to day. It is on everybody's tongue, and I send it just as it is told. What the upshot of this matter will be cannot now be foretold. The truth sooner or later will come out."

NEW YORK, August 11.—The Sun has a long story about the Conkling-Sprague affair, in which it is said the trouble was not with Conkling at all but with a German school master named Linck. Conkling was in the house, but saw nothing of the troubles. The Sun's account concludes that the report that Conkling had a personal encounter with Sprague has no foundation whatever. Nothing of the kind occurred and the only thing to give rise to the story is what is above related. It was Conkling's misfortune to be in Sprague's residence when the Linck altercation occurred, but he took no part in it, and was in no way involved in the affair.

WASHINGTON, August 11.—The report of a personal difficulty between Senator Conkling and ex-Governor Sprague of Rhode Island, at Narragansett pier last Friday, gives rise to much comment here, but is received with little surprise. Intimate relations existing between the senator and Mrs. Sprague have been open scandal in Washington society for more than two years, although the press has for the most part refrained from making them subject of remark. It is even known to a few that Governor Sprague more than a year ago instructed a prominent lawyer of this city to commence proceedings against Mrs. Sprague for divorce, but was dissuaded from this step and induced to a reconciliation. Since that time, as before, Senator Conkling has been almost a constant visitor at Mrs. Sprague's country residence of Edgewood, near this city, and his marked attentions whenever they met in public, his abrupt departure from evening parties where she was expected but failed to be, and their open exchange of notes while she was in the gallery and he on the floor of the senate have given rise to much gossip. Reports from Narragansett Pier as to the nature and cause of last Friday's difficulty are very conflicting, but the general impression here seems to be toward Senator Conkling and not toward the teacher, Linck, that Governor Sprague's hostility was manifested, and that Mrs. Sprague could not explain the reasons for it. Senator Conkling's friends here admit that he has been very foolish and imprudent, but deny that his friendship for Mrs. Sprague has been anything more than intellectual sympathy. Stories which are and have been current here with regard to their intimacy his friends declare to be malicious gossiping.

NEW YORK, August 11.—The Times' Providence, Rhode Island, special repeats the story of the Sprague scandal substantially as first told in the Associated Press dispatch, making the German music teacher, and not Conkling, the object of Sprague's wrath. It says it was the second attack to injure. A fortnight ago, at Watch Hill, Sprague assailed the same person with a stick. The teacher is a German from New York, who is passing a vacation near Narragansett River, and was hired to instruct Sprague's children during certain hours of the day.

Yellow Fever.

NEW YORK, August 11. The Herald's Memphis special says that the Howard physicians and visitors report the fever spreading rapidly in the suburbs of the city. The greatest destitution prevails and notwithstanding the city authorities are straining every point and hope to be able to weather the storm without appealing to the outside world, I venture the opinion that within ten days, they will be forced to make an appeal. The Howard association is in the same dilemma. Its expenses are over $1,000 a day, which is hourly increasing, with less than $13,000 in the treasury.

The Tribune points out the insecurity of New York city against yellow fever, illustrated by the boy who died at Brooklyn from germs of disease contracted at quarantine. Revelations of the tenement house inspection show the vile condition of 25,000 such homes. Inspectors have three months arduous labor before them in merely visiting and reporting their condition.

Last year 14,350 out of the 25,729 deaths in this city were in these houses. Twenty-five new cases are reported this morning. Four deaths have occurred since last night. A telegram received from authentic source positively denies the report of one case of fever at Mayersville, Miss.

LOUISVILLE, August 11. A case of yellow fever was reported to the health board, and the victim, a young doctor named Edward Morman, was immediately taken to the yellow fever hospital; probably will recover.

HAVANA, August 11. Ninety-three deaths from yellow fever in this city last week, decrease of forty from previous week.

ST. LOUIS, August 4. Mrs. Boland, of Memphis, who has been here about three weeks, was taken sick with fever two or three days ago, and with her two children has been sent to quarantine hospital as suspicious cases.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 11. 34 cases in all, 20 whites, 14 colored reported to board of health to-day. Two additional deaths have occurred, both colored. At a meeting of the executive committee this p. m., a committee of three were appointed to confer with the various ministers regarding propriety of closing churches discouraging any large assemblies which are calculated to spread yellow fever in our midst. Dr. O. H. Collins who had been sent by the president to Hill to investigate the cases of fever at that point, returned to-day. He reports one person refugee from Memphis down with fever. Every precaution has been taken against its spreading by isolating dwellings. Major Grey's condition to-night is extremely critical. He had an attack of black vomit this evening. A. M. Reynolds, letter carrier and Paul Ross check-boy in W. U. Telegraph office were stricken this afternoon. Thermometer to-day has ranged about 82 degrees.

Bismark's Great Scheme for German Unity.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The New York Times says thickening rumors of rupture between Russia and Germany and mysterious hints at connection between rather abrupt change in Bismarck's interior policy and certain necessities in his foreign policy cannot but attract attention. Unity of Germany, the great and avowed end of all Bismarck's exertions is not complete until the German part of Austria, comprising Moravia, Styria, Austria proper, Tyrone and Illyria is freed from municipal union with Magyar and Sclavic provinces and incorporated with Germany. But there is only one way in which this can be accomplished, namely by moving the centre of Austrian empire from Vienna to Buda Pesth, and transforming Austria into a great Slavic power with access to Black and Agaean seas. That Bismarck really entertains such ideas is evident and in a recent excited conversation with Littiau, the Romanian embassador, he made it more apparent when he plainly declared if Roumania did not fulfill the treaty of Berlin with respect to the emancipation of Jews, her independence would not be recognized but she would be placed under the suzerainty of Turkey or some other power.

Condition of the Laboring Classes.

NEW YORK, August 11.—The Times prints three columns of comparative labor statistics of this country and Europe. It says in every case it will be found that American laborer is paid better and can maintain himself and family at a less cost than the European workingmen in a similar branch of industry, but it is interesting to compare the condition of different nationalities. In the matter of material prosperity, comfort and contentment, the Englishman seems to have the best opportunities for bettering himself, but strikes and toppling are fatal drawbacks to their advancement. In France and Belgium, in spite of low wages and scanty means of sustenance, the laboring people are thrifty and contented. Germany's condition of the working classes is most deplorable. Destitution and despair appear to stare them in the face. Compared with the condition of other people, that of American laboring men would seem to indicate discontent as our national traits.

Jeff Davis and His Affairs.

NEW ORLEANS, August 11. Recently the New Orleans Picayune reported an endeavor to interview Jeff Davis on the Dorsey legacy, but with indifferent success. Davis stated his autobiography was not finished and did not know when it would be. Loss of papers of the rebellion and recent ill health had retarded the work. He said he was not a candidate for the Mississippi senatorship, but declined to state exactly what he would do if elected by the legislature.

Farrer, the lawyer who drew Mrs. Dorsey's will, is strongly of the opinion that the will is sound and according to the code of Louisiana. Evidence cannot be given of the disposition having been made through hatred, anger, suggestion or captation. He affirms that talk about undue influences are servile and juvenile babble, and altogether seems ready for the toughest kind of a fight in defense of the will, and Davis' right under it.

Tennessee's Disgrace.

NEW YORK, August 11.—The Tribune says postmaster-general Key's expression of views upon the result of the Tennessee election confirms the worst fears that have been entertained. He seems to have no doubt that the majority of the state are unwilling to pay even half their debt. The verdict is for absolute repudiation. The Times on the same subject says the democrats have the satisfaction of knowing they have smirched the local reputation of the republican party and involved it in a good deal of embarrassment, but the delight derivable from the fact cannot reconcile them to the dilemma in which they are involved by the defeat of compromise. Either they must now avow themselves favorable to repudiation or they must secede from the ground they have occupied and submit other terms to creditors.

Canadian Railway.

NEW YORK, August 11. A St. Paul special says: A party of Canadian officers have arrived here from an inspection of the country on the north of Lake Superior. The country traversed was of the wildest possible description; worthless for settlement, but having rich undeveloped silver mines. The officers bring reports of the exceeding difficulties in the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railroad in the region through which they passed. On the two sections of road which they passed through there is the densest and almost inaccessible country. Grading is accomplished after blasting 500,000 cubic feet of granite. About 2,000 men are now at work on the line.

Commentary on Democratic Economy.

CHETOPA, KS., August 11.—Capt. John Sacrist, mail contractor on route west from Vinita, Indian Territory, was found 150 miles west of Vinita to day, murdered. He left Vinita a few days ago with a considerable sum of money for the purpose of paying off his mail carriers. It is supposed that the desperadoes who robbed Canville a short time ago are the parties who comitted the crime. As the U. S. district court which has jurisdiction over the territory is powerless owing to lack of appropriation by congress to meet the expenses of marshals, it is thought these acts are but the beginning of a reign of terror in the Indian Territory.

Sutro Tunnel.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 11.—Under the late compromise the first payment was made to-day to the Sutro Tunnel Company by the Bonanza mines, amounting to $8,500, for a royalty on ore extracted during July. Gradually as the lateral branches reach the different mines, they commence to pay royalty. The Tunnel Company contemplates erecting mills immediately for the reduction of low grade ore.

WASHINGTON, August 11. The United States minister at Muravia, Liberia, reports the secession of a number of tribes heretofore supposed to belong to Liberia. Escape of Convicts.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11. Police to-day in watching the penitentiary guard boat saw the crew of two convicts leap overboard and being strong swimmers they escaped. Soon afterwards the police discovered the keeper hopelessly drunk in the bottom of the boat. Later police saw a guard boat overturned and putting into the river. They captured the crew who were endeavoring to escape by swimming. They also rescued the keeper who drunk was clinging to the bottom of the boat.

Germany and Silver.

LONDON, August 11.—Special dispatches are very contradictory as to Germany's intentions relative to the coinage question. One says it is understood that the government is making careful inquiry into certain facts in view of coming to a decision as to the proposed re-introduction of a bi-metallic standard.

BERLIN, August 11. In relation to the announcement that Germany had informed the United States that she is ready to negotiate for the introduction of double standard coinage, the Bourse Gazette has been assured that no official steps have been taken by Germany, although recent preliminary negotiations may lead to a decision in conformity with the above intelligence.

JOB WORK.

The present administration is showing its good faith on the silver question by doing everything possible to put silver into circulation. The following from Washington shows one method: "Treasurer Gilfillan has decided to require all the employes of the Government in Washington to take 10 per cent. of their salaries in silver. The pay-roll amounts to about $51,000,000 a month, and by this means $100,000 a month will be forced into circulation."

There is an old proverb "it matters whose cow is gored," that is applicable to all time. Within the past year two ministerial financial failures have come to light. The first was that of Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, who received in the place of a savings bank, millions from the poor Catholics. It appeared a few months ago that he had mismanaged the funds placed in his charge so that he had less than $1,000,000 with which to pay liabilities of $1,000,000. Had the archbishop been a savings bank president he would have been called a thief or an embezzler, because even if he intended to be honest, he had no right to continue to receive in trust the hard earnings of the poor which he knew he could not return. But the archbishop is a political factor, and hence there are no denunciations in the public press. Recently another minister has failed. He held no monies in trust. He speculated with his own money and lost. No orphans, widows, or poor people will suffer for his carelessness. Yet in the comments on this failure the Courier-Journal which had only kind words for the archbishop who lost $3,000,000 of the amount placed in his hands as a trust, indulges in this flippant paragraph: "The Rev. W. H. Murray is a genius, but even a genius can not preach the gospel, edit a religious newspaper, run a factory, conduct a Sunday school, drive fast horses, trade in blooded stock, be a jockey, fish and hunt, write books, speculate in bonanza stocks, ride a bicycle, play base ball, billiards and poker. The Reverend Adirondack tried to do all these things, and the inevitable crash has come. His piety has been of too general and miscellaneous a character." Such paragraphs are not peculiar to one paper. This is a disgrace, and shows how little the opinions of a paper may be worth. The Roman Catholic church is a glorious institution but there is no reason why their ministers should be condoned by the press for such a glaring betrayal of trust, and the ministers of other denominations for much slighter faults should be denounced as hypocrites and gamblers.

GERMANY AND SILVER.

The Philadelphia Times has published a letter from Hon. W. D. Kelley which is supposed to represent Bismarck's position on the silver question. While Judge Kelley's opinions are never worth the paper they are written on, still we suppose his report of a conversation may be reliable. The report is as follows:

"Yes, he said, in that matter we have gone fast, and too far. We have not been wise. As each state had its own monetary system, the empire found many coinages within its limits, and must unify them. It also found itself in a condition to use gold, and seemed wise to do so. One man cannot understand every specialty, and men must select those which they would master. I had not made finance a study, and had to choose an agent to conduct these changes. Herr Delbruch had great reputation as a financier, abroad and at home, and to him the matter was confided. But, great as was his reputation the results have shown that, as the country people say, he carried only water in his kettle, which proverb signifies that workmen who cannot obtain meat or broth, carry a kettle of water in order to conceal their poverty. I, therefore, had to call other counsellors, and make a specialty of the subject. It is clear that we did not need to abolish silver money, and we should have supplemented it by gold coinage. The sale of silver has reduced the price of that metal; has cost the empire an immense sum, and cannot be continued without enormous loss, as Von Decherd, president of the Reichsbank, has shown, and I have, therefore, prohibited further sales."

"At this point I suggested that our Government was about to invite Germany, France, England, and other nations to meet in joint convention, for the purpose of determining the relative values of gold and silver as a money metal. With an expression of mingled surprise and gratification, he quietly asked, 'Is the matter fully determined?' I replied affirmatively, saying that I had my information from President Hayes and our minister of foreign affairs, Mr. Evarts, and that congress had appropriated 120,000 marks with which to defray the expenses of our commissioners.

"Turning to Minister White with an earnestness of manner which caused me to think he would be pleased if the remark should be transmitted to Washington, he said:

"That proposition will not need protracted consideration. Its acceptance will be immediate."

"Your country," said Bismarck, "has great geographical advantages. Your occupation of the Pacific coast make the hordes of Asia your neighbors, and opens their trade to your enterprise, and the South American states are open to you on both oceans; but in this matter you must not act alone. Others must co-operate with you. I have told you that no more of our silver will be sold, and you may also know that the people want the coin for business, and that it will go into circulation. Again, it is already ordered."

The above is most encouraging. It justifies the votes of Senators Hill and Teller and the opinions of Representative Bedford. If we will wait, we can have the assistance of Europe in maintaining the unlimited coinage of silver. Probably by next December some definite action will have been taken. It is very unwise for the country to attempt the unlimited coinage of silver without some concerted action with other powers. This was seen by the silver men of the Senate in 1877 1878, and they wisely limited the coinage and provided for an international coinage commission. The commission did not accomplish the object for which it met, that is to establish for bi-metallic countries a common ratio between gold and silver, still its general influence was good, as it drew attention to the necessity of the remonetization of silver.

This year the prospect is in every way more favorable. A commission will be willing to act this year. Already Secretary Evarts is moving in the matter, and will arrange for some meeting to consider this subject. We should not be surprised to see within a year all the leading European countries, except England, adopt the bimetallic system and provide for the unlimited coinage of silver.

A TISSUE OF LIES.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe will turn over the Denver & Rio Grande to Receiver Ellsworth this week. The road was in very bad condition when placed in Santa Fe hands, but it will be in every way improved as surrendered. A mile of new steel rails has been laid below Pueblo and the engines and rolling stock have been placed in as good condition as was possible. Almost everything on the road had gone to rack when it was first leased to the Santa Fe, and the persistent war which was kept up did not justify the management in making the improvements they would like to have made. As it is however, the line is far more safe than it was at the time of the transfer. Much has been said about the accidents on the road. It may be well to state in this connection that the switch engine which was run off the track at this point was in charge of a Denver and Rio Grande engineer, that the train which went through the bridge above Colorado Springs was in charge of a Denver & Rio Grande engineer, and that ten days ago a compromise was effected which placed a large number of the old hands back. During these ten days most of the minor accidents have occurred. Whether the horrible condition of the road is to blame for this alone, or whether there has been some outside skulduggery added to the causes, it is difficult to say. The fact that upon the main line of the Atchison there have been no accidents is a significant one, however. Denver Tribune.

We must confess that for persistent downright, absolute and undeviating misstatements, the foregoing quotation is ahead of anything we have recently seen in our newspaper reading. Eli Perkins must now yield the palm to the unscrupulous writer on the Tribune. What astonishes us most is that the Tribune has the effrontery to publish as true what every well-informed reader knows to be false. We will notice a few of these misstatements.

First, It says "the road was in a very bad condition when placed in the Santa Fe hands." Their own appraisers said in December, 1878, "the D. & R. G. road is in a better condition than the average western road." Besides if the Tribune's statement is true the Santa Fe road has shown a shocking disregard for the public safety. The Tribune says the Atchison company laid one mile of steel rails during the year. One mile out of 337! Why if the road had been in good repair, at least 20 miles should have been laid! Before yielding possession the D. & R. G. were putting down new steel rails at that rate. But we will give some further facts regarding the manner in which the Atchison Co. kept up the road bed when we have more room. We will however use a Tribune argument before passing to another misstatement. The Tribune says: "The fact that upon the main line of the Atchison road there have been no accidents is a significant one however." Is it not also a significant fact that there was not an accident on the D. & R. G. for a year before it was placed in the hands of the A. T. & S. F.?

Second, The rolling stock is said as well as the road bed "will be in every way improved as surrendered." When the road was turned over to the A. T. & S. F. in December last, the appraisers stated there were 33 engines in all, 25 of which were in good repair, three in medium repair, three in bad order, and two undergoing repairs. The immediate repairs and the repairs for the next six months were estimated at $12,300. June 11th it was found according to an affidavit by N. W. Sample, master mechanic of the line under both managements that there were only eleven engines in good repair, fourteen engines in medium repair, eight engines in bad order, and two in shops for repair, and that $30,750 would be required to put them in good order. Since then eight or nine engines have been wrecked, events which are still fresh in the minds of our readers. Besides previous to June 11th fifteen freight cars have been destroyed which have never been replaced, and about thirty more have been destroyed since July 16th, making forty-five in all. So much for the rolling stock.

Third. As our readers will know, the engineer running the train at the time of the accident at the bridge, was a new man. He became connected with the road only the Tuesday before the Friday night of the accident. He had just come from South America and the $500 draft he lost and found, represented his savings there. The engineer that lost his life at Denver was not an old D. & R. G. engineer but an old D. & R. G. fireman. He was incompetent to be an engineer though promoted by Borst.

We might say enough to refute the above misstatements, but it is unnecessary. They are so barefaced, that a mere publication would have been sufficient. When the truth comes out, as it will, under the receiver, it will be shown that the Atchison road did not attempt to keep the road in repair, that it deliberately let the rolling stock run down, and did not do anything but lay "a mile of steel rails" to keep the track in repair.

National Board of Health

"Up to the time of the outbreak of fever at Memphis the board had done nothing. As soon as the epidemic broke out there was considerable flurry about the headquarters of the board, and a number of inspectors were appointed to visit various places in the United States, and report on sanitary condition of these respective localities. These inspectors were to be paid $10 a day and traveling expenses, and, as there are over twenty of them, some idea may be had of the cost of a health brigade which, as yet, has done nothing for the health of the country. Three health bulletins have been published by the board at irregular intervals, but for whatever information they contain the country is indebted to the Marine Hospital Bureau, which furnished all the data." Baltimore American.

WHITE HOUSE CHINA.

A Unique American Set Ordered by Mrs. Hayes for State Dinners.

In a bath room at Asbury Park, the window of which looks out upon the Atlantic, and where the music of the surf can be heard all day long, Mr. Theodore R. Davis, of the staff of Harper's Weekly, has made his studio for the last two months. During that time he has completed and sent to Haviland & Co., in Limoges, France, over fifty designs for what will be the first truly American china dinner set. The set is ordered for the White House, and the contract calls for its completion early next year. A Times reporter met Mr. Davis yesterday in his studio. Mr. A. H. Love, of the firm of Haviland & Co., was with him, and he gave the following account of the new state dinner set:

"I was present, said he, "when Mrs. Hayes asked that Mr. Pach should be permitted to take a photograph of some beautiful ferns in the Conservatory at the White House. She wanted them, she said, for a new state dinner set. 'I should have been glad,' she said, 'to have it American, but that seems impossible.' I told Mrs. Hayes that I thought a set could be made with such illustrations that it would be thoroughly American. I described at length the plans I had in my mind for such a set, and when I had finished Mrs. Hayes had a letter written requesting the cancellation of the contract already made for a new dinner set for the White House, and asking that a new one be drawn, in which it should be distinctly stated that, with the permission of Harper & Brothers, I should have full control. The assent of Harper & Brothers was afterwards cordially given.

"The set will embrace a special design for the oyster plate. The soup plate is modeled from the Kalmia flower, the mountain laurel, the form being that of a bowl rather than of the narrow-based plate at present in use. It is the flower with its natural base instead instead of the circular base, and the decoration of this series will be simple, though strong in color, embracing this list of subjects: A clam-bake, crab, green turtle, okra, palmetto, cabbage, maize, potato, laurel, frog, and other designs. The green turtle is on a Florida reef, crawling between the ribs of an old wreck which is stranded. The moon is shedding a mellow light, which tinges the waves and moss on the wreck, and the phosphorescence of the waves gives life to the drawing.

"The fish series of 12 is headed by a platter, the decoration of which is a magnificent shad, gilled in a golden net. The form of this dish is novel, being rectangular, with the edges rolled and tipped with dead gold. The form of the service-plate of the fish series is that of two scallop-shells combined. The decoration is confined to the smaller shell, and the subjects illustrated are the black bass, in a swift running stream, the blue fish chasing a porgy which he has just wounded, a brook pike lurking beneath a leaf of a water plant, two fresh water lobsters fighting, the pompano dropped by a fish-hawk outside the surf, striped bass, Spanish mackeral, smelts, sheepshead, oyster shells on a Palmetto log, speckled trout, terrapin of Maryland, and the red snapper of the Gulf of Mexico chasing a butter-fly fish.

"The game series embraces the following designs: The platter is decorated with a wild turkey. The service is decorated with California quail feasting on grapes and grain, with a golden sky for a background; canvass-back duck in full flight over the Delaware bay, ruffed grouse in full plumage under spring foliage, the prairie chicken escaping from a prairie fire; a ptarmigan's bath in the Rocky Mountains; a rail, or reed, or rice bird; teal duck, and the quail blizzed from the snow; the yellow-legged snipe, a baby woodcock, and the wild pigeon.

"For the dinner series no platter has been designed. It is possible that one may be produced in the future. The series will consist of twelve plates, illustrating the following subjects: An antelope in the cactus bad lands, a bear in a bee tree in which Bruin has got into trouble, while a comrade, seated comfortably below laughs at him, and a thunderstorm in the distance gives tone to the picture; a black-tailed deer ascending the slope of the Rocky Mountains at sunrise; a big horn, or Rocky Mountain sheep; an old buffalo in a snow storm, surrounded by coyotes and gray wolves; chickens in a garden; coon in a persimmon tree; the crane's 'walk around,' on the plains at night with Custer; the Mayflower; peccaries, or the wild pigs of America, and the Virginia deer, which is a night effect. The jack-light is in gold, with its reflection sparkling in the water beneath, and its gleams tinging the lily-pods with gold. A noble buck stands knee-deep among these.

"The dessert set will be quite simple in design, the subjects being entirely American, and embracing, among others, the following: The pecan-nut of Texas, the chincapin, the paw-paw, and the persimmon. I have neglected to describe the salad-plate, which will be novel. Mr. Haviland has made experiments, and will give me my drawing and etching upon a toned surface, the back of the plate having sufficient color to give the etching value. The last plate of the service will be of Indian design, a fac simile of an Indian plate, artistically handled. This plate is called 'crackers, cheese, and cigars.' I have introduced an independent American butter plate, the object of which is to give a point of color and a reflective light in the glasses. It is a pond-lily leaf, slightly curled, and upon the surface of the leaf is a drop of Haviland's fairee glaze, simulating water. The after-dinner coffee cup is of a very novel design, and quite unlike any cup at present in use. The tea cup is a Mandarin's hat inverted. The stem of a spray of the tea plant forms the handle. The chocolate cup is also novel. Before I decided definitely upon the colors and effect, Gibson, the stained-glass maker, made for me a combination of colored glass, small squares framed together, to give harmony of color, which I took to Professor Edison, and we spent some hours testing the effect of both direct and reflected light from the carbon, gas, kerosene, lime, and finally from his own clear electric light. We had what seemed to be two student lamps—one similar to that by which I myself work by, the other his own electric light. By the student lamp we lost the colors; by his light, and by that only, we got the full, strong color. N. Y. Times.

Bismarck's Personal Appearance.

As the clock struck 2 the carriage of Mr. White entered the courtyard of Prince Bismarck's official residence, which, fronting on Wilhelm strasse, surrounds three sides of a triangle. As we entered his room, Bismarck advanced and put me at ease by the cordiality of his greeting. His personal appearance was a surprise to me. Portraits, busts and statues had made me familiar with his face and head, but had not told me that his height is more than six feet three, and that his frame is broader than was that of General Scott, to whom in all physical respects, except in the color of the hair, he bears a striking resemblance than any man I have ever seen. Having turned his back upon the broad table, on which, from the papers spread upon it, it was evident he had been at work, he remarked that he was not so vigorous as formerly and could work but five hours a day at his desk, though he ought to work sixteen, and proceeded, with the easiest familiarity, to tell us how his habit of working far into the morning, and the pre-occupation of his thoughts by practical questions had made it impossible for him to sleep in the quiet hours of the night. "The silence that follows midnight is," said he, "terrible. It wakens all the evil spirits of my mind; they lead me into phantasies, and to escape them I get up and walk, or read or write. On many such occasions I have anticipated debates, and supposed what would be said in opposition and what I would say in reply, and fearing that I would not remember my thoughts and words which seemed so effective, have risen and carefully written them out. They were always too fine to be available among practical men, and the paper and pen which are always beside my bed have been useless and wasted. When the noises of the day begin I fall asleep and sleep till 1, or sometimes till 12 and even 1 o'clock. At my home in the country I would not, I think, sleep any, but that the great burden trains, with three engines and more than 100 wagons, pass each other on a railroad about 300 feet from my house, and during this time, soothed by the noise, I go to sleep." W. D. Kelly, in Philadelphia Times.

Paris Wit.

From M. Emile Mermet's book, "La Publicite en France:"

"Once I recollect that an honest bourgeois wrote to the editor of a financial journal as follows: "I see that you advertise the ——— Mine. Will you be so good as to have me put down for a hundred shares? I inclose the money for the first call." The editor, for a wonder was not a rascal, and wrote back: "The mine is not a desirable investment. The shares will be on a decline in less than six weeks, and if there is any dividend paid at the end of the year I shall be greatly surprised. Do not allow yourself to be imposed upon by any such swindle, but keep your money for a more promising investment. By return mail came the answer: "I am profoundly indebted to you for the information you have given me. Since the ——— Mine is a swindle, instead of 100 shares I will only take thirty."

X. has just ratted.

"I say," says an indignant member of the party he has just deserted, "you're a pretty fellow, you are. You change your political faith as you do your shirt."

"You wouldn't have me wear a shirt after it was dirty, would you?"

"If you please, sir, what is the price of that bracelet?"

"Fifteen thousand francs, madame."

"Are the diamonds real?"

"Yes, madame."

"I'm so sorry!"

A duel between the ferocious soldier X. and the timid poet Y. is averted by the latter's ignominious backdown.

"He'll apologize that'll be all right," they say to X.

"He must put his apology into writing."

"He will of course he will."

"It must be no slouch of an apology, you know, but something abject something that creeps and crawls."

"I'll see to that he'll write it in verse."

Solicitor and eminent counsel:

"There's a retainer in this case."

"Is it a good strong case?"

"Certainly as clear as day."

"All right; I'll have my clerk plead it."

Which is a very weak version of a famous mot by another advocate: "Sir, I can't take your case. There is no excuse in it for my losing it. N. Y. World.

A Jesuit Catechism for Indians.

From the papers of Father Brugas, printed in the Magazine of American History, we take the following extracts from the Jesuit catechism which was taught to the Iroquois, Hurons and other Indian tribes some two hundred years ago:

Of the Paradise the Indian proselyte asks:

Q. How is the country in Paradise, is it fine?

Thn Father Jesuit answers: A. It is very beautiful, there is no lack of every kind of eatables, of all that is necessery to clothe yourself, you are happy in every respect; if somebody says, I would like to be dressed in such a dress, there is the dress before you in an instant; if he desires to eat anything, Jesus Christ brings it immediately.

Q. Do people work in Heaven?

A. They do nothing whatever. They do not sow nor do they cultivate the fields, for they always find the wheat ripe and plenty of pumpkins and Indian beans, etc.

Q. Are the trees the same as here?

A. No; for the trees in Paradise are extremely beautiful, they are always in bloom, their leaves always green and they do not fall, the grass never dies.

Q. Is the sun the same as here? Does it rain? Does the wind blow? Does it thunder?

A. No; it is always fine weather and the sky is never cloudy.

Q. Have they fruits in Heaven?

A. That is not impossible.

Q. How are fruits made?

A. They are fine fruits; each tree is so loaded with them that, although people may gather them every day, there is never an end of it, for as soon as you have eaten one another grows in its place.

Q. Is it cold in heaven?

A. There is no winter, but an eternal summer.

Q. Are there many inhabitants in Heaven?

A. Yes, a very great number.

Q. Do they know each other?

A. They know each other and are brothers and sisters, they greet each other and never refuse or deny anything.

Q. Are the inhabitants of Heaven good?

A. They are very beautiful for people who when dying were misformed are straightened; there are no blind, no deaf, no hunchback people; for they are all made new in Heaven.

Q. Then there is no sickness in Heaven.

A. No; people live there very quietly. There are no diseases, no famine, no war, and no death.

Q. Is it not rather tiresome in Heaven?

A. No; for one hundred years are like a day. People have a great pleasure to look at each other.

J. M. ELLISON, Agent.

Mr. Abe Roberts is the authorized collector and solicitor for the GAZETTE Publishing Company.

The Golden Globe had nine columns on the recent water works celebration in that city.

Persons looking for a house for rent will find something of interest under the head of For Sale.

Dr. N. R. Corgell has bonded the Crystal Park mines in the sum of $10,000. This secures him a third interest in the claim.

Mr. C. R. Vincent has the handsomest fountain in the city. It is of bronzed cast iron and was put up by Mr. J. W. Fairfield.

The article in another column entitled Dog and Gun is not from our sporting correspondent, but calls attention to a matter which needs looking after.

Mrs. Beebee, of the Beebee House, Manitou, received a telegram yesterday engaging sixteen rooms for a party who will be here in a few days.

There will be a sociable at the M. E. church this evening. Iced Cream will be served and an excellent literary programme has been prepared.

As will be seen from a display advertisement in another column, Messrs. Ladd & Co. have opened an auction and commission house on Huerfano street.

The conditions of the sale of the Bassick bonanza are that Mr. Bassick pockets one million three hundred thousand dollars, and retains an interest in the mine, which has been stocked at ten millions.

Jim Jones, the Beau Brummel of the National House porters, had an interview with Justice Stewart yesterday. Jim had a little trouble with some obstreperous omnibus horses last Saturday at the depot, and to make a full explanation the matter will be brought before His Honor this afternoon.

Mr. A. J. Bletso of the Colorado Springs Hotel showed us last evening some very handsome specimens from a claim in which he is interested on Treasury Mountain, near Senator Parrish's recent strike. The specimens are rich in galena and give promise of good results. They are mostly blossom rock, and with such a good surface indication something very rich may be anticipated. We congratulate Mr. Bletso on his good luck.

The Rev. Robert Collyer, the Hon. T. J. Withrow, and a large party of ladies and gentlemen from Chicago, are guests of the Beebee House, Manitou.

We clip the following from the Buffalo Express of the 4th inst.: "The Hon. Lyman K. Bass arrived in this city on Saturday, expecting to spend a few weeks with Mr. James H. Metcalfe. The many friends of Mr. Bass will be glad to see him looking so much better for his nearly two years residence in Colorado.

We are glad to know that the Mountaineer is freed from debt and that it is now prepared to move forward unweighted by obligations. The new element in the management is represented by Mr. Russel, a courteous and energetic gentleman. Mr. Sweet will now be relieved largely from business cares and will be able to give more of his time to the editorial department of the paper. Great improvements have been made in the Mountaineer office. New desks and furniture, handsome curtains, etc., add much to the appearance of the establishment. Mr. Sweet is a spicy and entertaining writer, a genial companion and a thorough newspaper man. Our acquaintance with Mr. Russel is not so extended, but what we have seen of him prepossess us greatly in his favor. We wish the Mountaineer a full measure of success.

Broke His Neck

Mr. Abe Gibson met with the loss of a good horse yesterday. The animal became frightened and tearing loose dashed up the alley south of Huerfano street with a board to which it had been fastened attached to the halter. In jumping the ditch on South Tejon street the halter caught and the horse was thrown on its head, breaking its neck and causing instant death. Mr. Gibson is a poor man who makes his living by freighting and the loss is a severe one to him.

Feast of Lanterns for Colorado College.

As there are many questions asked about this we give the following facts in regard to it: It will be held on Thursday evening next on the green in front of the school house. There will be public speaking, singing of college songs by a double quartette, and music from the band. A hearty supper will be served from about five in the afternoon until ten in the evening. There will also be an ice cream and lemonade booth. There will also be a flower stand and other attractions. It is expected that a large crowd will be present. Arrangements will be made for transportation from Manitou, so that our summer guests may kindly give our college some help. The responses to the solicitor are generous and ample. We shall be able to announce the speakers in another issue.

Handsome Carriages.

Mr. J. M. Graham, who conducts the excellent livery stable on Tejon street, has just received some very handsome buggies from Messrs. S. L. North & Co. of Leavenworth, Kansas.

We examined them yesterday and found them elegant in design and handsomely finished. The peculiar feature about these vehicles is the Dexter King spring which has for the last two years attracted the attention of those interested in the improvements in carriage manufacture. The spring is applied to the side and by a recent improvement does away with the old "fifth wheel" and is now quite perfect. The advantages of the side spring have long been acknowledged, and now that this improvement has been made it may be considered perfect.

Mr. Graham will keep one of these carriages on exhibition at his stables, a beautiful canary colored vehicle of the finest workmanship, and will be happy to show it to any who may contemplate purchasing a buggy with all the modern improvements.

Dog and Gun.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

I must say that I am delighted with the enforcement of the law in the northern part of our city. In order that you may know how people obey it, I will instance the following, which have been reported to me from several persons:

It is a daily occurrence that as a person horseback, or a team, passes down North Tejon street, between Monument and Dale, he is most invariably attacked by a nest of loose and unmuzzled dogs. Not many days ago a man was thrown from his horse by a half dozen or more of these unruly dogs rushing into the middle of the street, and not only do they perform this daily duty, of rushing at the passers-by, but also a nightly one, which is visiting the different premises, giving dog serenades, robbing hen-roosts, and sneaking off with what fresh meat you may have hung on the side of your house, to receive the benefit of the cool night air. After this comes "shooting within the city limits."

For the past few days there has been great liberty on the part of some person or persons, in the use of a gun. At different intervals yesterday, could be heard the firing of this gun at the swallows and blackbirds that hovered around a neighbor's garden and barn, and as night approached I was informed by a friend that a ballet had entered his window during the day, while another friend testified to the fact, that a charge from the gun had scattered upon the roof of his house, and glancing off struck the corner of the house next door. The person that has the management of this gun is, I should judge, not more that nine or ten years of age, really too young to indulge in the use of fire-arms —especially in a city where the use of such by older persons, is prohibited.

There has been an earnest desire expressed by some of the citizens in this locality, to make complaint regarding the management of such affairs, and as many have wished me to do so, I do it without apology or hesitation.— AN OBSERVER.

The Beebee House Ball.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

MANITOU, COLO., Aug. 10, 1879.

The event of last evening was the ball at the Beebee House. Whether a person is in search of business or simply something delightful about an assemblage of this sort where happy people may be seen chasing the joyous hours away to the bewitching measures of Danube waltzes. But the affair which interested Manitou people last night and temporarily drove from tourists' minds fond remembrances of romantic Alpine and mountain flams was of much more than ordinary brilliancy and deserves more than passing notice. Mrs. Beebee, whose success is a striking instance of what a lady executive skill can accomplish, has in her well ordered, delightfully furnished and faultlessly neat hotel all the requisites for giving a thoroughly recherche entertainment of her guests. The house is always the rendezvous of many of the best people who sojourn in these mountains but at this time its register is particularly full of the names of distinguished and fashionable persons.

One of the centers of attraction was the Turkish minister, Aristarchi Bey, who, enroute from California to Washington, could not resist the temptation of enjoying a brief session of Beebee House hospitality. Another gentleman of especial interest is M. DeCorcelle, secretary of the French legation. His residence at present is, of course, at Washington, but he is now on a tour west. These gentlemen were the "belles of the ball," and were, as Dick Swiveler would express it, constantly "threading the mazy." The urbanity of their manners and the delicacy of their attention to the ladies contributed a great deal to their popularity.

Among the other persons whom your correspondent saw in the ball-room were Mr. and Mrs. Orr and Miss Belle Orr, of St. Louis. The writer is not a Jenkins, and pauses abashed before the task of describing the dresses of the ladies. Miss Orr was attired in a lovely pink crape dress, and was especially noticeable on account of her faultless waltzing.

Another family from St. Louis is that of Major Turner, his daughters, the Misses Turner, and Mr. Will Turner.

Lieutenant Geo. M. Wheeler, whose name is well-known in connection with U. S. surveys in this state, and wife were present.

From Washington there were Mr. and Mrs. Sherrell and daughter, and Miss Newland.

Mr. Ayer, proprietor of the world-famous cherry pectoral accompanied by his daughter, Miss Nellie, and his sons, took part in the pleasures of the evening.

In the list of guests from St. Louis mention should have been made of Mrs. Copeland and the Misses Copeland, W. S. Pope and family, and Mrs. Howe and Mrs. Swetzer. The last two are daughters of Capt. Eads, the renowned jetties engineer, who is now perhaps as prominently as any other American before the minds of all intelligent citizens.

New York city was represented by Judge Noah Davis and family, Mr. and Mrs. Richards and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arnaux and family, and Mr. Thompson.

In the crowd we noticed Ex-Governor George Elbert, of Denver, General Cooke and family, Miss Clark, Dr. Davis, of Cincinnati, Hon. Hugh Butler and wife, of Denver, Mr. and Mrs. Woerste, of New Orleans, Miss Keith, Miss Hann, and Mrs. Johnson, of North Platte, Nebraska, Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Brookes, of Missouri, and Mrs. Collyer.

There were also present a number of the guests of the Manitou House and residents of Colorado Springs.

Mr. Birdseye was a very attentive and accommodating floor manager. Among the other gentlemen on the floor were Messrs. Dodd, Bucklin and Robinson of Rush creek.

One of the most beautiful sights at the ball was the young the very young people. Little Misses Davis, Richard, Arnaux and some others waltz with a grace and smoothness equalled by very few society belles.

At the approach of Sunday morning the music ceased and the farewells for the night were taken. SENEX.

Held in Bondage.

Jack Dolan, John Maher and Frank Watson, the Manitou waiters who were charged with riotous conduct and brought to this city from Denver by Constable Clark, obtained a change of venue yesterday and were tried before Justice Roberts of Colorado City. Gen. Danford appeared for the defence and Mr. W. Harrison for the prosecution. After the evidence for the state was all in Gen. Danford moved for a dismissal of the case. Long and able arguments followed, and His Honor decided that he would fine the prisoners $10 and costs. The costs amounted to over $100, and until they are paid the belligerent waiters will have to wait in the county jail. We are informed that none of them are employes of the Manitou House.

Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association, the members of which have so kiddly furnished us with such a handsome reading room, and under whose auspices such excellent meetings have been held during the last ten months, is now in arrears on the rental, and also upon the salary of the very efficient general secretary, Mrs. S. G. Cleveland, and they request those who have subscribed and have not paid to please call at the rooms and cast in their mite. They would also again call upon those who have as yet given nothing for the support of this philanthropic work to aid them with their subscriptions. Very few are aware of the vast amount of good that has been brought about by the Association, and the members invite everybody to visit their rooms, that they may see what the Association is doing, then they know all will help them, and help them, to-day.

Treasury Mountain Strikes.

We learn from a gentleman who has just returned from the Gunnison country that Senator Parrish has made a rich strike on Treasury Mountain. The mine is situated about 11,500 feet up the mountain, and shows up finely in argentiferous galena and zinc.—A force of about a dozen men is at work developing the property, and the prospect is very encouraging.

About two hundred feet above this lode, which is called the Quaker City, is the Bear Paw lode, on which a shaft twenty feet has been sunk. Porphyry and slate have been struck, and the showing is good.

The "black jack" in the Quaker City is precisely similar to that in the famous Dodgeville, Wisconsin, mines.

Galena City Mines.

Reports from the Spanish Peaks mines give some definite information regarding the mines in that vicinity. Quite a large number of claims have already been located, and over half a dozen are being worked extensively. Jack Booth is working a claim. The Dillon Brothers are working hard, and are risking everything on their find. J. L. McLemore has a promising lode which he is developing. The Tempest lode, discovered by Duckett, Chaplin and Crossright, is in full operation. This mine shows a pay streak of black sulphuret and galena, averaging eight inches in width. The Mammoth, another lode in the vicinity, shows a pay streak of thirty-six inches—hard carbonates. It is owned by Messrs. F. B. Chaplin, Sam Bell, and Russ Wright.—Another good paying lode is the Specie Payment, owned by Thomas Sentry and Sam Bell.

The working of these lodes has carried in a number of miners and prospectors to the district, and for their accommodation a store has become a necessity in that section. Mr. J. L. McLemore has taken advantage of this necessity, and will open a supply depot there at once, having been here purchasing supplies. Thus the development of the district goes slowly along, and it will not be long before there will be a rush to that section. A provision trade has already sprung up, and the supplies so far, have mostly been taken from Trinidad.

SCIENCE AND HONESTY COMBINED.

We all know how dishonest men use science to assist in swindling. But Mr. Gillet called science to his aid when formualating Gillet's Double Extracts. His great pride in these, as well as his numerous other preparations, is more than pardonable, for no one has succeeded in equalling them, for they are not only scientifically but are honestly prepared, being true fruit flavors and wonderfully delicious.

Hill's Manual teaches how to write any document correctly.

Hill's Manual is a library of many books relating to social and business life condensed into one volume.

Hill's Manual is a ready made college, right at hand, from which immediate information may always be had as to how to transact business correctly.

Do you wish to write plainly, beautifully and correctly? Then study Hill's Manual, which is the most complete self instructor in existence.

Are you desirous of being able to conduct public meetings? Then examine Hill's Manual to see the exhaustive chapter on parliamentary rules, drafting resolutions, constitutions, by-laws, etc.

Hill's Manual answers thousands of questions of a business, commercial and statistical character, which farmers, mechanics, business and professional men desire to know. It is the cheapest and best encyclopedia for all classes of people.

On Summer Street, Boston, a territory of but seven blocks, upward of 450 copies of Hill's Manual were sold.

On Commercial Street, Atchison, over 200 copies of Hill's Manual were sold in a territory of but six blocks.

In the city of Leavenworth over 700 copies of Hill's Manual were sold to business and professional men.

Ex-Vice President Colfax says of Hill's Manual: "It is a valuable book, which ought to be multiplied as many times as there are families in the United States."

Ex-Gov. Gaston, of Massachusetts, says of Hill's Manual: "No one can imagine the amount of information contained in this book from its title. It is clearly the fundamental principles of a commercial college, collated and bound, so that you can carry it home, to be studied at your leisure."

W. A. Simmons, Collector of customs, Boston, says of Hill's Manual: "It is one of the most useful books ever laid upon the counting room desk or the drawing room table, and will be found of great value to all merchants." tf.
